Prospectus 2021-2022

Undergraduate

WELCOME TO THE IPA AND TO THE WHITAKER SCHOOL

Against the background of the major changes currently underway in work practices, family life, and wider society, now is a good time to invest in the future by pursuing learning. We are confident that the programmes we offer provide the opportunity to do so.

The Whitaker School of Government and Management at the Institute of Public Administration (IPA) provides a wide range of programmes in the broad fields of public management and business studies, ranging from one- and two-year specialist qualifications to four-year honours degrees. A great variety of subjects are taught on these courses, including economics, law, accounting, human resource management, healthcare policy, statistics, local government, European studies, and business policy. Whether students come from the public or private sectors, they will find that the Whitaker School has a programme of great personal and professional interest to them.

Whitaker School students are adults with all sorts of demands on their time. They often choose to study here because our accredited qualifications are delivered in very flexible, student-friendly ways. All programmes are part-time, so students can remain in full-time employment or attend to other aspects of their lives while working toward a new certificate, diploma or degree. They are generally delivered through a blended learning model that combines classroom-based teaching and online components.

All the programmes in this prospectus are accredited by the National University of Ireland (NUI). The IPA is a recognised college of the NUI. IPA undergraduate programmes sit between levels six and eight on Ireland's ten-point National Framework of Qualifications.

IPA student surveys continue to show that our programmes are very successful in enabling students with busy jobs and family lives to learn new and important things and to obtain advanced qualifications in fields of perennial value. They also show that our students genuinely enjoy their time studying with us and that they make lasting friendships and contacts. I hope that some of the courses described in these pages will interest you and that you return to education with the IPA.

ABOUT THE IPA AND THE WHITAKER SCHOOL

The Institute of Public Administration (IPA) specialises in research-informed and practice-based higher education programmes. Founded in 1957, it is an established authority in the provision of part-time third-level programmes for public servants and others.

The Whitaker School of Government and Management, which brings the Institute's education and research activities together, offers more than 70 accredited programmes. Each year around 1,000 people graduate from the School.

The Whitaker School's programmes have long proved popular with those who want to obtain a high-level qualification while attending to their work and domestic obligations. The programmes are of different duration and students choose how far they wish to proceed, often obtaining interim awards as they do so.

The IPA has long experience in adult education. It knows what busy professional learners are looking for when they return to education: comprehensive programmes of high standing that are flexible enough to enable students to study in the way that best suits their personal circumstances.

As its students live and work throughout Ireland, the IPA tries to ensure that its part-time programmes can be taken from anywhere in the country. Recognising that many of its students are returning to education, meanwhile, the Institute pays great attention to individual students needs and prides itself on a collegiate, welcoming learning environment.

The programmes, which are taught by both academics and experienced practitioners, seek to connect academic theories and principles with current and perennial issues in public management and business.

LOCATION - DUBLIN 4 AND NATIONWIDE

The IPA is located on Lansdowne Road in Dublin 4, immediately adjacent to the sports stadium and to Lansdowne Road DART station. It is very well-served by public transport, with bus and train routes just minutes away. Behind the impressive Victorian façade is a modern campus and superb library.

Whitaker School students do not, however, have to live in Dublin. Programmes are delivered through a blended learning model that combines classroom-based teaching with online components. In short, wherever you live or work, you can take the programmes described in this prospectus.

ACCREDITATION

The IPA is a recognised college of the National University of Ireland (NUI). All the programmes outlined in this prospectus are accredited by the NUI; they are university-level qualifications. IPA undergraduate programmes sit between levels six and eight on the ten-point National Framework of Qualifications.

WHITAKER SCHOOL PROGRAMMES - A BRIEF INTRODUCTION

Public Management

The Whitaker School is, quite simply, the leading provider of public management education programmes in Ireland. No other institution offers a comparable range of qualifications in this area. Students can take certificates and diplomas in a range of discrete subject areas, including local government management, law, health economics and civil service studies. Alternatively, they can study for an honours degree in public management, a degree that includes interim awards and lets students specialise in the area of most interest or relevance to them.

Business Studies

The Bachelor of Business Studies (Hons) includes two interim awards, at certificate and diploma-level, and offers specialisations in accounting, marketing, and HRM. Students take four subjects in each year.

PROGRAMME DELIVERY

Whitaker School undergraduate programmes are generally delivered through a blended learning model that combines classroom-based seminars, webinars, and extensive online and other resources. Depending on the programme, seminars and webinars can take place on selected evenings, weekends, or weekdays.

PRIOR LEARNING AND PROGRESSION OPPORTUNITIES

The Whitaker School recognises prior learning and, where appropriate, offers students with relevant qualifications exemptions from subjects or stages of a programme. The School also enables students to progress from one qualification to another. The table on the next page notes the progression opportunities within the Whitaker School.

The flexible learning options offered by the IPA were invaluable in enabling me to complete my qualification while in full-time employment. I can safely say that the programme really broadened my career options.

Kathleen Maher, IPA Graduate

WHY CHOOSE THE WHITAKER SCHOOL AT THE IPA?

- Whitaker School programmes are part-time and expressly designed for those with busy professional and personal lives.
- A blended learning model means that students can take programmes no matter where they live.
- Whitaker School programmes are accredited by the National University of Ireland (NUI), of which the IPA is a recognised college.
- The Whitaker School is the national authority on public management issues and its programmes cover the subjects essential to a public service career.
- Many programmes offer practical skills development in specific areas and relevant public sector case studies, thereby relating theory to practice.
- Business studies programmes appeal to students keen to develop a career in either the public or the private sector.
- Students can specialise in a wide range of fields.
- Prior learning is recognised through exemptions from subjects/stages.
- Students can progress, at a pace of their choosing, from certificate awards through to postgraduate programmes.
- Located in the heart of Dublin 4, the IPA's Training and Education Centre provides facilities of the highest order.

IPA LIBRARY

The Library provides information, reference and lending services to students, members, and staff of the Institute. These include web-chat, email, telephone, and postal services. The Library collection includes books, eBooks, print journals, and electronic journals on a wide range of subjects including law, politics, economics, management, governance, the EU, healthcare, finance, local government, and sociology.

IPA librarians are on hand to assist students in their studies. Regular sessions are provided to help students develop the skills to identify, locate, and access appropriate sources to complete their coursework. Books may be borrowed for two weeks, and those already on loan can be reserved. The Library catalogue can be accessed from the IPA website: www.ipa.ie/library.

The Library manages access to thousands of full-text journal articles. These can be accessed remotely by all students. Materials not held in the Library may be requested through the inter-library loans service, and items can be delivered in hard copy or electronically.

LIBRARY OPENING HOURS

During term time (mid-September to late April), the Library is open during the following times:

Monday to Thursday: 09.15 to 20.00

Friday: 09.15 to 17.15

Most Saturdays in term: 10.30 to 14.30

During the summer months, the Library is open Monday to Friday during office hours. Further details of opening hours are available at www.ipa.ie/library.

Please check for any last-minute changes to opening hours, particularly at weekends and during the Summer, before planning a visit to the Library.

- Year Two: Diploma in Public Management.

ACCREDITATION: National University of Ireland.

PLACE ON NFQ: Level 8 (Major Award).

COMMENCES: September 2022.

APPLICATION DEADLINE: September 2022.

FEES: The cost of the programme is €3,200 per annum (includes all matriculation and examination fees), payable in one or two instalments. See p.76 for more details.

PROGRESSION: Students can progress to the MA (Public Management), MA (Leadership and Strategy), or other graduate programmes.

THE PROGRAMME

This degree is a four-year, part-time programme that provides a comprehensive examination and analysis of subjects critical to contemporary public management. A highly-regarded qualification, it offers instruction in, among other subjects, law, economics, politics and social policy. It includes two interim awards: Certificate in Public Management (Year 1) and the Diploma in Public Management (Year 2). Students take four subjects in each year.

IS THIS PROGRAMME FOR YOU?

Yes, if you work in the wider public service and would like a broad understanding of the subjects that determine public management. Many students work in the civil service but the programme also attracts students from the local and voluntary sectors, the healthcare sector and from state-sponsored bodies. Some may have been unable to pursue a third-level qualification at an earlier point in their career and now wish to do so while remaining in full-time employment.

SUBJECTS

YEAR ONE - CERTIFICATE IN PUBLIC MANAGEMENT

The first year is both a stand-alone qualification – Certificate in Public Management – and the first stage in the four-year degree programme. See also p. 16.

Economics

This introductory-level course explains the main theories and principles of economics. No prior knowledge of economics is presumed. The course covers both micro- and macro-economics and addresses such topics as the laws of supply and demand, how market prices are reached and competition.

Law

Public servants must understand the fundamentals of the legal system. This course focuses on the fundamentals, explaining the Irish legal system and the main provisions of the Irish Constitution. Students explore, among other topics, the structure of the court system, practice and procedure in the courts and the rights that the Constitution affords citizens.

Politics, Government and Public Administration

This course is divided into two parts. The first is largely concerned with the institutions of government and the Irish political system. The Irish institutions and systems are compared to those in other countries. The second part of the course focuses on Ireland's system of public and social administration, explaining how the civil service is organised and the management of social welfare services, healthcare, education and housing.

Principles of Management

This course provides a solid grounding in the key principles of modern management theory. It explains the origins of contemporary management science and details the most important elements of management, including leadership, HRM and change management.

YEAR TWO - DIPLOMA IN PUBLIC MANAGEMENT

The second year is both a stand-alone qualification – Diploma in Public Management – and the second stage of the four-year degree programme. See also p. 18.

Economics

This course builds on the fundamentals of economics explored in the Certificate year by exploring both micro- and macro-economics in greater depth. Students will learn about the economic rules and theories that relate to the operation of markets, the distribution of wealth, the allocation of resources, labour supply and inflation.

Organisation and Management

An organisation's structure is a determining factor in its operation. This course explores current thinking on organisational structure and the role of management in the creation and maintenance of the most appropriate structure. Among the specific topics addressed are the different schools of organisation theory, the design of effective organisations and the significance of the internal culture and the external environment to an organisation's work.

European Studies

Ireland's membership of the EU is of huge importance to public management. This course explains the key facts of EU membership, addressing the history of the EU, the power and responsibilities of its institutions, the decision-making process, key EU policies, and different perspectives on the EU's development and reform.

Social Policy

This course explores key areas of social service provision in Ireland, including health, education, housing and social welfare, as well as the development of the welfare state in Ireland and internationally. It also reviews the role of the voluntary sector, equality policy, and 'life cycle' policies, including policies addressing children, older people and those with a disability. The module covers trends in social services and compares the approach in Ireland with that in other countries.

YEAR THREE

Economics

This year's course focuses on public sector economics, a field that is critical to public servants at various grades. The topics addressed include economic growth, forecasting and planning, the finances of central and local government and the principles of taxation.

Financial Management

This course provides students with a clear understanding of standard accounting techniques and the proper management of an organisation's finances. Designed for those with no background in accounting, it addresses, among other things, double-entry book-keeping, the measurement of profits and the regulations governing financial statements and disclosure.

Administrative Law

Administrative law is a public law subject that deals with the lawful exercise of power by government and state agencies. It seeks, in short, to establish the manner in which public bodies can affect the lives of citizens. Students will examine the laws regarding the civil service, the separation of powers, judicial review and legal compliance.

Human Resource Management

This course covers several specific topics in the HRM field, including manpower planning, performance management, managing change, health and safety issues, employment legislation and strategic management.

YEAR FOUR

Economics

The study of economics in the final year of the degree turns to economic policy and policy analysis. The course explores such topics as industrial and regional economic policy, economic integration, globalisation and issues around financing and control.

Strategic Management

Strategic management is the study of how organisations meet their objectives and effectively respond to change. This course focuses on strategic management in the Irish public sector, but it covers concepts common to both the public and private sectors.

Public Policy-Making

This module examines different ways of understanding policy-making processes, the different influences, and the actors involved. It reviews discrete 'stages' within the policy-making process, such as framing and agenda setting, policy formulation, and implementation, as well as themes such as public service reform. Significant attention is paid to the different influences and constraints that exist on policy making and the implementation of policy, such as the role played by ideology, globalization, and international relations.

Employee Relations and Law

This course addresses the key topic of employee relations, examining how such relations can determine an organisation's success or otherwise. It considers the main provisions of employment law, participation and partnership in the workforce, health and safety legislation and managerial strategies for healthy employee relations.

ASSESSMENT

Each year of the degree is assessed by means of assignments and final examinations.

BACHELOR OF ARTS (HONS) - LAW AND THE ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE

PROGRESSION: Students can progress to the MA (Criminal Justice) or other graduate programmes.

THE PROGRAMME

This is a four-year, part-time programme that combines subjects critical to contemporary public management in all sectors with those especially relevant to law and the administration of justice. In addition to learning about the economic, legal and HR issues that affect public administration broadly, students obtain specialised knowledge about such matters as EU law, criminology and penology and law enforcement. This highly-regarded qualification includes two interim awards – at Certificate and Diploma level.

IS THIS PROGRAMME FOR YOU?

This programme has wide appeal, but it is particularly relevant for:

- Members of An Garda Síochána
- Prison staff
- Other public servants working in the administration of justice and related fields

SUBJECTS

YEAR ONE – CERTIFICATE IN PUBLIC MANAGEMENT

The first year is both a stand-alone qualification – Certificate in Public Management – and the first stage of the four-year degree programme. See also p. 16.

Economics

This introductory-level course explains the main theories and principles of economics. No prior knowledge of economics is presumed. The course covers both micro- and macro-economics and addresses such topics as the laws of supply and demand, how market prices are reached and competition.

YEAR TWO - DIPLOMA IN PUBLIC MANAGEMENT

The second year is both a stand-alone qualification - Diploma in Public Management - and the second stage of the four-year degree programme. See also p. 18.

European Law

EU law plays a hugely significant role in public management in Ireland. This course explains the sources of EU law, the main legal instruments that the EU uses, the EU institutions that uphold the law, the fundamental freedoms that EU law protects and how EU law relates to Irish domestic law.

Social Policy

This course explores key areas of social service provision in Ireland, including health, education, housing and social welfare, as well as the development of the welfare state in Ireland and internationally. It also reviews the role of the voluntary sector, equality policy, and 'life cycle' policies, including policies addressing children, older people and those with a disability. Among the specific topics addressed are the different schools of organisation theory, the design of effective organisations and the significance of the internal culture and the external environment to an organisation's work.

YEAR THREE

Criminology and Penology

This course discusses the various theories that have been advanced to explain criminal behaviour. It also addresses contemporary theory on penology.

Administrative Law

Administrative law is a public law subject that deals with the lawful exercise of power by government and state agencies. It seeks, in short, to establish the manner in which public bodies can affect the lives of citizens. Students will examine the laws regarding the civil service, the separation of powers, judicial review and legal compliance.

Economics

This year's course focuses on public sector economics, a field that is plainly critical to public servants at various grades. The topics addressed include economic growth, forecasting and planning, the finances of central and local government and the principles of taxation.

Financial Management

This course aims to provide students with a clear understanding of standard accounting techniques and the proper management of an organisation's finances. Designed for those who do not possess a background in accounting, it addresses, among other things, double-entry book-keeping, how profits are measured and the regulations governing financial statements and disclosure.

YEAR FOUR

Law Enforcement and the Administration of Justice

This course examines how justice is administered in Ireland and related laws. It explores the general principles of criminal law, including the presumption of innocence. It also assesses the legislation that governs the actions of An Garda Síochána, the provisions of the Constitution relating to arrest and trial by law and efforts to balance the needs of society with civil liberties.

Employment Law

A very significant body of law regulates the employment relationship. This course explains and analyses that body of law, discussing such key topics as the employment contract, the legislation that protects employees, equality in the workplace, health and safety law and the law regulating the employment of non-nationals.

Strategic Management

Strategic Management is the study of how organisations meet their objectives and effectively respond to change. This course focuses on strategic management in the Irish public sector, but it covers concepts common to both public and private sector organisations.

Public Policy-Making

This module examines different ways of understanding policy-making processes, the different influences, and the actors involved. It reviews discrete 'stages' within the policy-making process, such as framing and agenda setting, policy formulation, and implementation, as well as themes such as public service reform.

THE PROGRAMME

The BA (Hons) (Management) is a four-year, part-time programme that focuses on the effective management of people and organisations. Students explore the economic, legal and HR issues that affect public administration broadly and obtain specialised knowledge about the management function, including financial management, marketing and the management of information systems. This highly-regarded qualification includes two interim awards – at Certificate and Diploma level.

IS THIS PROGRAMME FOR YOU?

This course attracts students from the wider public service who have, or are likely to have, some management responsibilities. The course mixes subjects common to public management generally with those that address particular management fields. Students come from:

- The wider public service
- The private sector
- State-sponsored bodies
- The voluntary sector

SUBJECTS

YEAR ONE - CERTIFICATE IN PUBLIC MANAGEMENT

The first year is both a stand-alone qualification – Certificate in Public Management – and the first stage of the four-year degree programme. See also p. 16.

PROGRESSION: Students can progress to the second year of the Diploma in Public Management or BA (Hons).

THE PROGRAMME

This one-year, part-time programme provides a systematic introduction to the subjects at the heart of public management in Ireland. Students take four subjects and address such crucial topics as constitutional law, the principles of economics, the Irish system of government and the most influential theories of management.

The Certificate is both a stand-alone qualification and the first year of the four-year BA (Hons) programme. Students who successfully complete this year can enter the second year of the Diploma in Public Management or BA (Hons), where they will have the opportunity to specialise in a field of particular relevance to them. If students do not wish to take all the subjects in one year, they can take the programme on a phased basis.

IS THIS PROGRAMME FOR YOU?

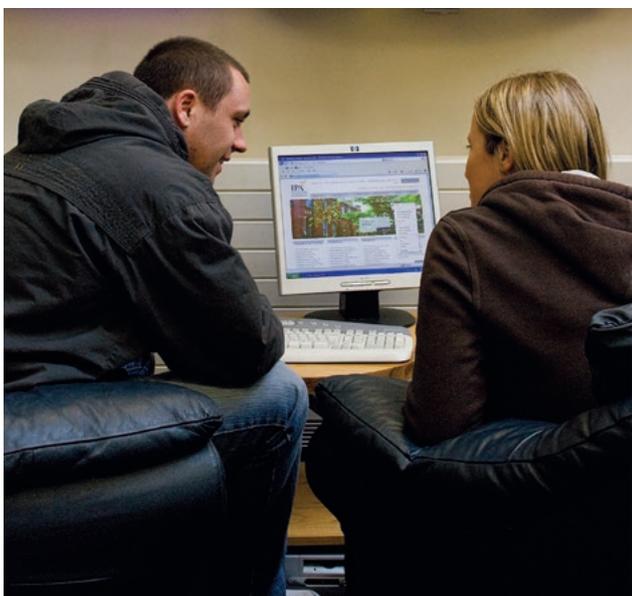

This programme has, for decades, proved invaluable to students who require a solid grounding in subjects fundamental to public management. It is an ideal choice for those returning to education and keen to obtain a third-level qualification over one academic year, with an option to continue to degree level. Students on this programme often work at junior to middle grades in:

- Government Departments
- Local Authorities
- State-sponsored Agencies.

SUBJECTS

Economics

This introductory-level course explains the main theories and principles of economics. The course covers both micro- and macro-economics and addresses such topics as the laws of supply and demand, how market prices are reached, monopolies and competition, national income, the financial system and monetary policy.

Law

Public servants must understand the fundamentals of the legal system. This course focuses on the fundamentals, explaining the Irish legal system and the main provisions of the Irish Constitution. Students explore, among other topics, the structure of the court system, practice and procedure in the courts and the rights that the Constitution affords citizens.

Politics, Government and Public Administration

This course is divided into two parts. The first is largely concerned with the institutions of government and the Irish political system. The Irish institutions and systems are compared to those in other countries. The second part of the course focuses on Ireland's system of public and social administration, explaining how the civil service is organised and the management of social welfare services, healthcare, education and housing.

Principles of Management

This course provides a solid grounding in the key principles of modern management theory. It explains the origins of contemporary management science and details the most important elements of management, including leadership, HRM and change management.

ASSESSMENT

The programme is assessed by means of assignments and final examinations.

DIPLOMA IN PUBLIC MANAGEMENT

Certificate in Public Management (Year 1).

ACCREDITATION: National University of Ireland.

PLACE ON NFQ: Level 6.

COMMENCES: September 2022.

APPLICATION DEADLINE: September 2022.

FEES: The cost of the programme is €3,200 per annum (includes all matriculation and examination fees), payable in one or two instalments. See p.76 for more details.

PROGRESSION: Students can progress to the relevant stream of the BA (Hons).

THE PROGRAMME

This two-year part-time programme is both a stand-alone qualification and the second year of the four-year (BA) Hons programme. Having completed the first year—Certificate in Public Management—students continue their studies with four subjects from a choice of five streams:

- Public Management
- Healthcare Management
- Law and the Administration of Justice
- Management
- Human Resource Management

IS THIS PROGRAMME FOR YOU?

This programme is suited to those working across the wider public service who would like to extend their understanding of public management issues and take a subject especially relevant to a particular sector. The first year provides a solid appreciation of the fundamentals of economics, law, government and management, which the second year builds upon.

SUBJECTS

YEAR ONE - CERTIFICATE IN PUBLIC MANAGEMENT

The first year is both a stand-alone qualification and the first stage in this programme and the degree. See p.16 for more details.

YEAR TWO

Economics

This course builds on the fundamentals of economics explored in the Certificate year by exploring both micro- and macro-economics in greater depth. Students will learn about the economic rules and theories that relate to the operation of markets, the distribution of wealth, the allocation of resources, labour supply and inflation.

Organisation and Management

An organisation's structure is a determining factor in its operation. This course explores current thinking on organisational structure and the role of management in the creation and maintenance of the most appropriate structure. Among the specific topics addressed are the different schools of organisation theory, the design of effective organisations and the significance of the internal culture and the external environment to an organisation's work.

European Studies*

Ireland's membership of the EU is plainly of huge importance to public management. This course explains the key facts of EU membership, addressing the history of the EU, the power and responsibilities of its institutions, the decision-making process, key EU policies, and different perspectives on the EU's development and reform.

* This subject is not taken by students in the Law and the Administration of Justice and Healthcare Management Streams.

STUDENTS CHOOSE ANOTHER SUBJECT(S) FROM ONE OF THE FOLLOWING STREAMS:

Public Management

Social Policy: This course explores key areas of social service provision in Ireland, including health, education, housing and social welfare, as well as the development of the welfare state in Ireland and internationally. It also reviews the role of the voluntary sector, equality policy, and 'life cycle' policies, including policies addressing children, older people and those with a disability. The module covers trends in social services and compares the approach in Ireland with that in other countries.

Healthcare Management

Health Policy and Planning: This course offers an overview of policy and planning in the Irish health system. It examines the historical development of the system, the impact of demographic changes, and current structures for governance, service delivery and regulation. It also analyses the roles of key stakeholders, important policy developments and the challenges in planning and implementing health policy.

The module covers trends in social services and compares the approach in Ireland with that in other countries.

European Law: EU law plays a hugely significant role in public management in Ireland. This course explains the sources of EU law, the main legal instruments that the EU uses, the EU institutions that uphold the law, the fundamental freedoms that EU law protects and how EU law relates to Irish domestic law.

Management

Business and Company Law: All transactions in the State, whether public or private, are governed by commercial law. In this course, students will examine the laws that pertain to the creation, performance and dissolution of contract, the formation of companies, the acquisition of shares and the liquidation of businesses.

Human Resource Management

Organisational Behaviour: Human behaviour is the critical element in organisational success. This course explores the theories that have developed about how people behave in an organisational setting and how management can respond to those behaviours. It considers such topics as motivation, leadership, group behaviour and organisational culture.

ASSESSMENT

The programme is assessed by means of assignments and final examinations.

THE PROGRAMME

This programme is designed to provide students with a practical and comprehensive understanding of government in Ireland. In this new era of integrating and transforming public services, students will receive an important system-wide induction to the roles and functions of the various sectors of government and the key processes such as legislation, budgeting, modernisation and government decision making. Students will consequently better appreciate the role and interactions of their organisations within this complex system and be better equipped to deal with the myriad of tasks and responsibilities in their public service careers.

IS THIS PROGRAMME FOR YOU?

This Certificate is relevant to all staff working within the civil service or state agency sectors, but will be particularly useful to staff at junior and middle level grades. The content is appropriate to those in administrative, technical, professional and managerial roles. It will also be relevant to staff in other organisations that have significant interactions with government and the system of public administration.

PROGRAMME CONTENT

This Certificate covers the following key topics over five modules:

- Central Political Agencies
- Government Departments and Civil Service
- State Agencies and non-Elected Oversight Agencies
- Sub-National Government, the Health Sector and Legal Agencies
- Issues in Governance and Public Management

DELIVERY

The programme is delivered through a blended learning model. Students obtain a range of online resources and a specially commissioned course text. Seminars are delivered by IPA specialists and experienced practitioners.

THE PROGRAMME

The Professional Diploma in Official Statistics for Policy Evaluation has been developed in conjunction with the Central Statistics Office (CSO) and is targeted at decision-makers throughout the public service. It introduces students to important Irish and international official statistics that will help them better understand the structure and trends in Ireland's economy and society. A unique feature of the programme is that course material is prepared and taught by professional statisticians from CSO. This is a practical "hands-on" course, and emphasis is placed on the visualisation and presentation of statistics so that useful policy relevant information or knowledge can be derived. Students are also introduced to data management and metadata best practice and to the broader principles of evidence-informed policy formulation and evaluation.

IS THIS PROGRAMME FOR YOU?

This programme will appeal to anyone in the wider public service who would like to obtain a specialised knowledge of official statistics and their role in decision-making. It is of great benefit to those who need to present analyses or business cases to peers and to those charged with research and analyses. A working knowledge of Excel would be useful.

PROGRAMME CONTENT

The programme is divided into four main areas. The topics covered include the following:

1. Framework for Official Statistics

THE PROGRAMME

The Diploma in Law is a one-year, part-time programme that addresses the basic laws and legal principles that determine and influence the work of the State and private enterprise. It focuses on four key subjects. Students will learn about, among other things, how the Irish courts operate, the rights protected by the Constitution, the legal powers of state bodies, the laws governing contracts and business relationships and the laws that protect employees.

IS THIS PROGRAMME FOR YOU?

Yes, if you would like to acquire a comprehensive introduction to law in just one academic year. As the programme moves between constitutional, business, administrative and employment law, it attracts a diverse range of students. Many students are also attracted by the very flexible delivery method, which allows students to study at a time and place of their own choosing and participate in interesting seminars/webinars over the course of the academic year.

SUBJECTS

The Legal System and Constitutional Law

Public servants must understand the fundamentals of the legal system. This course focuses on the fundamentals, explaining the Irish legal system and the main provisions of the Irish Constitution. Students explore, among other topics, the structure of the court system, practice and procedure in the courts and the rights that the Constitution affords citizens.

Business and Company Law

All transactions in the State, whether public or private, are governed by law. In this course, students will examine the laws that pertain to the creation, performance and dissolution of contracts, the formation of companies, the acquisition of shares and the liquidation of businesses.

Administrative Law

Administrative law is a public law subject that deals with the lawful exercise of power by government and state agencies. It seeks, in short, to establish the manner in which public bodies can affect the lives of citizens. Students will examine the laws regarding the civil service, the separation of powers, judicial review and legal compliance.

Employment Law

A very significant body of laws regulates the employment relationship. This course explains and analyses that body of law, discussing such key topics as the employment contract, the legislation that protects employees and the laws regulating the employment of non-nationals.

ASSESSMENT

Students complete assignments and sit examinations.

THE PROGRAMME

The Professional Diploma in Human Rights and Equality is a one-year, part-time programme that has been developed in conjunction with the Irish Human Rights and Equality Commission. It seeks to give public servants and others a better understanding of the place that human rights and equality occupy in public management and administration. The responsibility to devise policy, deliver services, and follow processes that protect human rights and further equality has become explicit since the introduction, via legislation, of the public sector duty in this area. This programme provides instruction in the most relevant laws and in their implications for the civil and wider public service.

IS THIS PROGRAMME FOR YOU?

Yes, if you know you would benefit from a comprehensive education in how human rights and equality influence contemporary public policy and service delivery. Students come from all parts of the wider public service and beyond and work at various grades. They are all keen to understand how the laws and policies around human rights and equality have become intrinsic to the day-to-day delivery of services and to obtain an informed perspective on the challenges that human rights and equality developments have for the workplace. No prior knowledge of the law in this area is required.

SUBJECTS

Philosophical and Political Perspectives on Human Rights and Equality

This module introduces students to the historical and conceptual foundations of contemporary human rights and equality law. Students will learn about the major historical developments in this area, the key theories that have been advanced in support of the universality of human rights and equality, and the current debates about the application of these theories in national and international contexts.

The International and European Frameworks for Human Rights

Students will be introduced to the United Nations human rights system, the Council of Europe human rights mechanisms (including the European Convention on Human Rights), and the European Union human rights and equality framework. The module is essentially concerned with the international legal framework within which Irish laws and policies sit.

Human Rights and Equality in the Irish Legal System

The main aim of this module is to introduce students to the protections around human rights and equality provided by the Constitution of Ireland and to the very considerable body of legislation and case law that has developed in Ireland, particularly in recent years.

Human Rights and Equality in Public Management

This module will give students the knowledge, resources, and skills they need to apply what they have learned about human rights and equality to their working lives and to their organisations. It will use case studies from different sectors to provide guidance on the human rights and equality issues that regularly arise in the working lives of public servants and those charged with managing and delivering public services of all sorts. This module includes coverage of the Public Sector Equality and Human Rights Duty.

ASSESSMENT

Assessment is based on assignments in all modules and final examinations.

THE PROGRAMME

The Diploma in Management is a one-year, part-time programme that explores key subjects in modern management theory and practice. It seeks to equip both those currently working in management and those who hope to obtain management positions with the requisite skills to make a valuable contribution to the strategic direction of their organisation and to advance their own career. Suitable for both those working in the public and private sectors, the Diploma addresses four key management subjects:

- Principles of Management
- Human Resource Management
- Financial Management
- Strategic Management

IS THIS PROGRAMME FOR YOU?

This one-year programme will be of real interest to those who have some management responsibilities or are eager to obtain the skills and qualifications that management positions require. The delivery method may be an important factor in your decision, as it allows you to study at a time and place of your own choosing.

SUBJECTS

Principles of Management

This course provides a solid grounding in the key principles of modern management theory. It explains the origins of contemporary management science and details the most important elements of management, including leadership, HRM and change management.

Human Resource Management

This course covers several specific topics in the HRM field, including manpower planning, performance management, managing change, health and safety issues, employment legislation and strategic management.

Financial Management

This course provides students with a clear understanding of standard accounting techniques and the proper management of an organisation's finances. Designed for those with no background in accounting, it addresses, among other things, double-entry book-keeping, how profits are measured and the regulations governing financial statements and disclosure.

Strategic Management

Strategic management is the study of how organisations meet their objectives and effectively respond to change. This course focuses on strategic management in the Irish public sector, but it covers concepts common to both the public and private sector. Among the topics addressed are the history of strategic management in the Irish public sector, why strategic management is seen as critical and the tools of strategic management.

ASSESSMENT

Students are assessed by means of assignments and final examinations.

DURATION: Four years of part-time study.

AWARD: Honours Bachelor of Arts.

INTERIM AWARDS:

- Year One: Certificate in Public Management.
- Year Two: Diploma in Public Management.

ACCREDITATION: National University of Ireland.

PLACE ON NFQ: Level 8 (Major Award).

COMMENCES: September 2022.

APPLICATION DEADLINE: September 2022.

FEES: The cost of the programme is €3,200 per annum (includes all matriculation and examination fees), payable in one or two instalments. See p.76 for more details.

PROGRESSION: Students can progress to the MA (Healthcare Management) or other graduate programmes.

THE PROGRAMME

This four-year, part-time programme combines study of subjects critical to contemporary public management in all sectors with subjects particular to healthcare management. In addition to learning about the economic, legal and HR issues that affect public administration broadly, students obtain specialised knowledge about health policy, health planning and healthcare in other countries. This highly-regarded qualification includes two interim awards – at Certificate and Diploma level. If students do not wish to take all the subjects in one year, they can study just some of them and take the programme on a phased basis.

IS THIS PROGRAMME FOR YOU?

This degree will be of real value to those working in health administration at a national or regional level in health or hospital services. As they will take a mix of common and stream subjects, potential students will be interested in placing healthcare management in a broad economic, legal and organisational context.

SUBJECTS

YEAR ONE - CERTIFICATE IN PUBLIC MANAGEMENT

The first year is both a stand-alone qualification – Certificate in Public Management – and part of the four year degree programme. See also p. 16.

Economics

This introductory-level course explains the main theories and principles of economics. No prior knowledge of economics is presumed. The course covers both micro- and macro-economics and addresses such topics as the laws of supply and demand, how market prices are reached, and competition.

Law

Public servants must understand the fundamentals of the legal system. This course focuses on the fundamentals, explaining the Irish legal system and the main provisions of the Irish Constitution. Students explore, among other topics, the structure of the court system, practice and procedure in the courts and the rights that the Constitution affords citizens.

Politics, Government and Public Administration

This course is divided into two parts. The first is largely concerned with the institutions of government and the Irish political system. The Irish institutions and systems are compared to those in other countries. The second part of the course focuses on Ireland's system of public and social administration, explaining how the civil service is organised and the management of social welfare services, healthcare, education and housing.

Principles of Management

This course provides a solid grounding in the key principles of modern management theory. It explains the origins of contemporary management science and details the most important elements of management, including leadership, HRM and change management.

YEAR TWO – DIPLOMA IN PUBLIC MANAGEMENT

The second year is both a stand-alone qualification – Diploma in Public Management – and the second stage of the four-year degree programme. See also p. 18.

Health Policy and Planning

This course offers an overview of policy and planning in the Irish health system. It examines the historical development of the system, the impact of demographic changes, and current structures for governance, service delivery and regulation. It also analyses the roles of key stakeholders, important policy developments and the challenges in planning and implementing health policy.

Economics

This course builds on the fundamentals of economics explored in the Certificate year by exploring both micro- and macro-economics in greater depth. Students will learn about the economic rules and theories that relate to the operation of markets, the distribution of wealth, the allocation of resources, labour supply and inflation.

Organisation and Management

An organisation's structure is a determining factor in its operation. This course explores current thinking on organisational structure and the role of management in the creation and maintenance of the most appropriate structure. Among the specific topics addressed are the different schools of organisation theory, the design of effective organisations and the significance of the internal culture and the external environment to an organisation's work.

Social Policy

This course explores key areas of social service provision in Ireland, including health, education, housing and social welfare, as well as the development of the welfare state in Ireland and internationally. It also reviews the role of the voluntary sector, equality policy, and 'life cycle' policies, including policies addressing children, older people and those with a disability. The module covers trends in social services and compares the approach in Ireland with that in other countries.

YEAR THREE

Governance and Management of Quality in Healthcare

How are quality and safety enacted and protected within the Irish healthcare system? This course answers that question by analysing national and local approaches to the governance and management of quality, including risk management, clinical audit and accreditation systems.

Economics

This year's course focuses on public sector economics, a field that is critical to public servants at various grades. The topics addressed include economic growth, forecasting and planning, the finances of central and local government and the principles of taxation.

Financial Management

This course provides students with a clear understanding of standard accounting techniques and the proper management of an organisation's finances. Designed for those who do not possess a background in accounting, it addresses, among other things, double-entry book-keeping and the measurement of profits.

Administrative Law

Administrative law is a public law subject that deals with the lawful exercise of power by government and state agencies. It explains how public bodies can affect the lives of citizens. Students will examine the laws regarding the civil service, the separation of powers, judicial review and legal compliance.

YEAR FOUR

Health Economics

This course considers the economics of healthcare provision. It explores such topics as the nature of the healthcare market, how health insurance affects the cost of healthcare and public and private provision of healthcare.

Comparative Healthcare

This course examines international trends in healthcare policy, explores healthcare policies and priorities in other OECD countries and policy trends in the EU, compares Irish and international policies and examines the possible relevance of reforms elsewhere for the Irish system.

Strategic Management

Strategic management is the study of how organisations meet their objectives and effectively respond to change. This course focuses on strategic management in the Irish public sector, but it covers concepts common to both public and private sector organisations.

Public Policy-Making

This module examines different ways of understanding policy-making processes, the different influences, and the actors involved. It reviews discrete 'stages' within the policy-making process, such as framing and agenda setting, policy formulation, and implementation, as well as themes such as public service reform. Significant attention is paid to the different influences and constraints that exist on policy making and the implementation of policy, such as the role played by ideology, globalization, and international relations.

ASSESSMENT

Students complete assignments and take examinations.

ENTRY REQUIREMENTS: Applicants should be in a supervisory or managerial role. For further information on entry requirements, please contact the IPA.

THE PROGRAMME

The Diploma in Healthcare Management is a two-year part-time programme that gives students the knowledge and skills they need to make an effective contribution to the management of health services. Students learn about the functions and breadth of the management role, about the healthcare organisation and about financial and human resource management. The programme's focus on both the organisational and the national environment (the micro and the macro) leaves students well placed to advance in their career.

IS THIS PROGRAMME FOR YOU?

The programme will be of interest both to those who have recently moved into management roles in the health sector and to existing managers who wish to formalise and develop their management skills in the healthcare context.

PROGRAMME CONTENT

This programme has four modules covering key healthcare management competencies.

The Management Process in Healthcare Organisations

Students learn about the theories and functions of management and models of organisational structure, culture and strategic planning.

Health Policy and Planning

Students learn about the historical development of the Irish health system and the recent reforms which have created and re-shaped the HSE. They also learn about key policies in various areas of service delivery such as acute care, primary care and mental health.

Managing Resources

Students learn about the current national context and the drivers for fiscal restraint. They also learn about approaches to measuring and managing performance before moving to more specific topics such as costing, budgeting, and value for money.

Human Resource Management

Students learn about the breadth of the HRM function within an organisation and address such key topics as managing performance, understanding motivation and dealing with grievance and discipline.

DELIVERY

Students study through blended learning, attending scheduled seminars/webinars and using online resources. They also receive specially commissioned programme material and reading lists for each module.

ASSESSMENT

Students complete written assignments in each module and sit final examinations.

THE PROGRAMME

The Professional Diploma in Health Economics is a one-year, part-time programme that examines the economics of healthcare provision. There is a palpable need for those interested in healthcare in Ireland to understand the economic rationale behind the allocation of resources in this vital sector. To meet this need, the Professional Diploma explores the fundamentals of economics, the distinctive features of healthcare economics and the different mechanisms for evaluating spending on healthcare.

Expressly designed for those who want to obtain a nationally recognised qualification while remaining in work, the Professional Diploma in Health Economics is delivered through a blend of scheduled webinars/seminars, online resources, and programme texts.

IS THIS PROGRAMME FOR YOU?

How to provide good-quality healthcare in the most efficient manner remains a source of contentious debate around the world. This programme will be of great benefit to anyone working in healthcare provision in Ireland. No prior knowledge of economics is presumed.

Students of this programme are very often:

- Front-line medical staff
- Employees of pharmaceutical companies
- Healthcare administrators from the public and private sectors

SUBJECTS

The Fundamentals of Applied Economics

This module seeks to develop students' knowledge and understanding of the central principles of applied economics. Equipped with this knowledge, students will be able to properly comprehend the policy choices available in the allocation of resources to healthcare. Among the topics addressed are supply and demand, the role of the market, consumer behaviour, competition and generating profit.

Health Economics

This module builds on the knowledge that students gained in the Fundamentals module by examining the distinctive features of healthcare economics. Students will learn about the particular economic issues that are integral to this sector. Among the topics addressed are the demand for healthcare, how healthcare is paid for, the role of insurers, the regulation of healthcare professionals and public vs. private provision of healthcare.

An Introduction to Healthcare Evaluation Techniques

This module addresses the efficiency and effectiveness of healthcare interventions. Students will address the techniques that have been advanced to evaluate healthcare spending. Among the topics addressed are how to measure effectiveness in healthcare, cost-benefit analysis, cost of illness studies and cost minimisation analysis.

ASSESSMENT

Students complete written assignments in each module and sit final examinations.

CERTIFICATE IN HEALTH SERVICES

APPLICATION DEADLINE: September 2022.

FEES: €1,450 (includes all matriculation and examination fees), payable in two instalments. See p.76 for more details.

PROGRESSION: Students can continue their studies with the Diploma in Health Services Policy.

THE PROGRAMME

This programme offers students a comprehensive overview of the Irish health service, relevant legislation, and the current issues and policies affecting the health system. Students will obtain up-to-date knowledge and a practical understanding of the health service, at national and local levels, which will contribute to their effectiveness and performance in the work environment. Students who successfully complete this programme have the option of progressing to the Diploma in Health Services Policy.

IS THIS PROGRAMME FOR YOU?

This Certificate is ideally suited to:

- Those working in the health service who need to broaden their understanding of various aspects of the service and recent changes
- Staff from other health systems who need to understand how the Irish health system is structured and how it works
- Those working for agencies with links to the health service (e.g. voluntary agencies, personal and social services) and who wish to familiarise themselves with the health system

Past students have included staff of all disciplines working in the Irish health service: medical and administrative staff, allied health professionals, nursing grades and others working within the sector.

PROGRAMME CONTENT

The programme is delivered through three core blocks which provide a comprehensive overview of the current health system.

The Historical Development of the Irish Health System

Students learn about how the Irish system has developed since before the formation of the State up to the most recent reforms within the HSE. Key legislation, strategies, reports and policies will be explored.

Service Delivery

Students learn about the current health of the nation and demographic changes ahead and about policies and structures within key areas of service delivery, including acute care, primary care, social care, and mental health.

Key Stakeholders in the Irish Health System

Students learn about the main stakeholders in the Irish health system, including the Department of Health, the HSE, voluntary bodies, private sector organisations and regulatory bodies.

As with the other degree programmes, students who do not wish to take all the subjects in one year can take the programme on a phased basis.

IS THIS PROGRAMME FOR YOU?

HRM is of course at the heart of modern organisational life and this honours degree attracts students from:

- The wider public sector
- The private sector
- State-sponsored bodies
- The voluntary sector

You may well work, or aspire to work, in the HR function, but the degree is also very suitable for those who want to have a management or supervisory role over the course of their career.

SUBJECTS

YEAR ONE – CERTIFICATE IN PUBLIC MANAGEMENT

The first year is both a stand-alone qualification – Certificate in Public Management – and part of the four-year degree programme. See also p. 16.

Economics

This introductory-level course explains the main theories and principles of economics. No prior knowledge of economics is presumed. The course covers both micro- and macro-economics and addresses such topics as the laws of supply and demand, how market prices are reached and competition.

YEAR TWO – DIPLOMA IN PUBLIC MANAGEMENT

The second year is both a stand-alone qualification – Diploma in Public Management – and part of the four-year degree programme. See also p. 18.

Organisational Behaviour

Human behaviour is the critical element in organisational success. This course explores the theories that have developed about how people behave in an organisational setting and how management can respond to those behaviours. It considers such topics as motivation, leadership, group behaviour and organisational culture.

Organisation and Management

An organisation's structure is a determining factor in its operation. This course explores current thinking on organisational structure and the role of management in the creation and maintenance of the most appropriate structure. Among the specific topics addressed are the different schools of organisation theory, the design of effective organisations and the significance of the internal culture and the external environment to an organisation's work.

Students will learn about the economic rules and theories that relate to the operation of markets, the distribution of wealth, the allocation of resources, labour supply and inflation.

European Studies

Ireland's membership of the EU is plainly of huge importance to public management. This course explains the key facts of EU membership, addressing the history of the EU, the power and responsibilities of its institutions, the decision-making process, key EU policies, and different perspectives on the EU's development and reform.

YEAR THREE

Human Resource Management

This course covers several specific topics in the HRM field, including manpower planning, performance management, managing change, health and safety, employment legislation and strategic management.

Employee Resourcing, Development and Performance Management

A key requirement of the HRM function in any organisation is to obtain suitable employees and to develop their skills and knowledge. This course examines the elements of this requirement, including recruitment and selection.

Administrative Law

Administrative law is a public law subject that deals with the lawful exercise of power by government and state agencies. It seeks, in short, to establish the manner in which public bodies can affect the lives of citizens. Students will examine the laws regarding the civil service, the separation of powers, judicial review and legal compliance.

Economics

This year's course focuses on public sector economics, a field within the discipline that is critical to public servants at various grades. The topics addressed include economic growth, forecasting and planning, the finances of central and local government and the principles of taxation.

YEAR FOUR

Human Resource Leadership and Strategy

The evolving nature of the modern organisation requires clear leadership to determine objectives and a clear HR strategy to secure those objectives. This course examines, among other things, leadership theories, HR strategies in a globalised world, the strategic management of human capital and HR strategy in the public sector.

Employee Relations and Law

This course addresses the key topic of employee relations, examining how such relations can determine an organisation's success or otherwise. It considers the main provisions of employment law, participation and partnership in the workforce, health and safety legislation and managerial strategies for healthy employee relations.

Economics

The study of economics in the final year of the degree turns to economic policy and policy analysis. The course explores such topics as industrial and regional economic policy, economic integration, globalisation and issues around financing and control.

Strategic Management

Strategic management is the study of how organisations meet their objectives and effectively respond to change. This course focuses on strategic management in the Irish public sector, but it covers concepts common to both public and private sector organisations.

ASSESSMENT

Assessment is based on assignments and examinations.

PROGRESSION: Students can enter the second year of the BA (Hons) on successful completion of a bridging programme.

THE PROGRAMME

The Diploma in Human Resource Management (HRM) explains how organisations effectively manage people. It does this by analysing the aims of the HRM function and by detailing its key features. A one-year part-time programme, it is suitable for those who have no prior knowledge of HRM but are keen to understand the principles, laws and practices that determine the management of staff in the modern workplace.

IS THIS PROGRAMME FOR YOU?

Yes, if you would like a solid grounding and accredited qualification in the fundamentals of HRM in just one year. The flexible delivery method will particularly appeal to those who, perhaps due to work or domestic commitments, would prefer to study at a time and place of their choosing. The Diploma appeals to those interested in careers in the public and the private sector, exploring ideas and practices common to both. Some prior knowledge of HRM principles and practices would be beneficial.

SUBJECTS

Human Resource Management

This course covers several specific topics in the HRM field, including manpower planning, performance management, managing change, health and safety, employment legislation and strategic management

Employee Relations and Law

THE PROGRAMME

The BA (Hons) – Local Government is a four-year, part-time programme that combines study of subjects critical to contemporary public management with subjects particular to local government. In addition to learning about the economic, legal, and HRM issues that affect public administration broadly, students also consider social policy matters, how local government is financed, and how the Irish system of local government compares to that in other countries. This degree programme includes two interim awards – at Certificate and Diploma level.

IS THIS PROGRAMME FOR YOU?

This honours degree often attracts staff from local authorities who want to obtain a third-level qualification while remaining in full-time employment. As students take a mix of common subjects and subjects specific to local government, they are able to understand the issues facing local authorities in relation to broader economic and management theories and practices.

SUBJECTS

YEAR ONE – CERTIFICATE IN PUBLIC MANAGEMENT

The first year is both a stand-alone qualification – Certificate in Public Management – and part of the four-year degree programme. See also p. 16.

Economics

This introductory-level course explains the main theories and principles of economics. No prior knowledge of economics is presumed. The course covers both micro- and macro-economics and addresses such topics as the laws of supply and demand, how market prices are reached, and competition.

Law

Public servants must understand the fundamentals of the legal system. This course focuses on the fundamentals, explaining the Irish legal system and the main provisions of the Irish Constitution. Students explore, among other topics, the structure of the court system, practice and procedure in the courts and the rights that the Constitution affords citizens.

Politics, Government and Public Administration

This course is divided into two parts. The first is largely concerned with the institutions of government and the Irish political system. The Irish institutions and systems are compared to those in other countries. The second part of the course focuses on Ireland's system of public and social administration, explaining how the civil service is organised and the management of social welfare services, healthcare, education and housing.

Principles of Management

This course provides a solid grounding in the key principles of modern management theory. It explains the origins of contemporary management science and details the most important elements of management, including leadership, HRM and change management.

YEAR TWO - DIPLOMA IN PUBLIC MANAGEMENT

The second year is both a stand-alone qualification – Diploma in Public Management – and part of the four-year degree programme. See also p. 18.

Social Policy

This course explores key areas of social service provision in Ireland, including health, education, housing and social welfare, as well as the development of the welfare state in Ireland and internationally. It also reviews the role of the voluntary sector, equality policy, and 'life cycle' policies. It covers trends in social services and compares the approach in Ireland with that in other countries.

Economics

This course builds on the fundamentals of economics explored in the Certificate year by exploring both micro- and macro-economics in greater depth. Students will learn about the economic rules and theories that relate to the operation of markets, the distribution of wealth, the allocation of resources, labour supply and inflation.

Organisation and Management

An organisation's structure is a determining factor in its operation. This course explores current thinking on organisational structure and the role of management in the creation and maintenance of the most appropriate structure. Among the specific topics addressed are the different schools of organisation theory, the design of effective organisations and the significance of the internal culture and the external environment to an organisation's work.

European Studies

Ireland's membership of the EU is plainly of huge importance to public management. This course explains the key facts of EU membership, addressing the history of the EU, the power and responsibilities of its institutions, the decision-making process, key EU policies, and different perspectives on the EU's development and reform.

YEAR THREE

Local Government and Finance

This course covers a number of key themes in local government reform and explains how local authorities obtain the funds necessary for their operation. It considers, among other things, some of the newer roles of local authorities working with others at local level. On the financial side, the course considers efficiency reforms, the growth of grants, funding options and the capital expenditure of local authorities.

Economics

This year's course focuses on public sector economics, a field critical to public servants at various grades. The topics addressed include economic growth, forecasting and planning, the finances of central and local government and the preparation of budgets.

Financial Management

This course provides students with a clear understanding of standard accounting techniques and the proper management of an organisation's finances. It is designed for those with no background in accounting.

Administrative Law

Administrative law is a public law subject that deals with the lawful exercise of power by government and state agencies. Students of this course will examine the laws regarding the civil service, the separation of powers, judicial review and legal compliance.

YEAR FOUR

Comparative Local Government

This course compares the system of local government that pertains in Ireland with that in other countries. Using both a thematic approach and case studies of specific examples from abroad, it provides a comparative analysis of such key issues as local government finance, duties, citizen participation, and leadership.

Economics

The study of economics in the final year of the degree turns to economic policy and policy analysis. The course explores such topics as industrial and regional economic policy, economic integration, globalisation and issues around financing and control.

Strategic Management

Strategic management is the study of how organisations meet their objectives and effectively respond to change. This course focuses on strategic management in the Irish public sector, but it covers concepts common to both the public and private sector.

Public Policy-Making

This module examines different ways of understanding policy-making processes, the different influences, and the actors involved. It reviews discrete 'stages' within the policy-making process, such as framing and agenda setting, policy formulation, and implementation, as well as themes such as public service reform. Significant attention is paid to the different influences and constraints that exist on policy making and the implementation of policy, such as the role played by ideology, globalization, and international relations.

ASSESSMENT

Students submit assignments and sit examinations.

THE PROGRAMME

The Certificate in Local Government is a hugely popular programme that has, for many years, played a central role in educating staff from all parts of the Irish local government system. It is an explicitly introductory programme, one that seeks to provide students with a grounding in the main laws, policies, and practices that determine contemporary local government operations. Addressing such key local government topics as how local government is financed, the role that elected members have in a local authority, and the responsibilities for local authorities in such areas as housing and planning, it is taught by national experts in Irish local government and by experienced managers who work within the local government sector.

On completing this programme, students can progress to the Diploma in Local Government and explore the topics they have been introduced to in greater depth. From there, they can directly enter the third year of the the IPA's BA (Hons) in Public Management, which has a local government stream.

IS THIS PROGRAMME FOR YOU?

This Certificate is ideally suited to:

- Staff of all disciplines (technical, administrative, indoor and outdoor) working in the local government system

ENTRY REQUIREMENTS: IPA Certificate in Local Government Studies.

PROGRESSION: Participants who successfully complete the Diploma programme may advance to stage 3 of the Local Government stream of the IPA's Bachelor of Arts (Hons) degree on completion of a bridging course.

THE PROGRAMME

The Diploma in Local Government Studies is designed to build on the knowledge that students have obtained in the Certificate programme, providing a more in-depth and analytical treatment of the main local authority services in Ireland. Having studied the central facts around local government, students now take a more evaluative approach, exploring the problems and opportunities that face local government. The programme also takes a broader approach to the issues, situating local government services within economic, political, and social contexts.

In addition to an analysis of such complicated local government responsibilities as planning and the environment, the Diploma considers the various ways in which the system has been reformed and the relative success or otherwise of reform efforts.

IS THIS PROGRAMME FOR YOU?

The Diploma in Local Government Studies has long been an important step in the career development path of local authority staff, providing information and analysis that will enable staff to improve their current competencies and develop new ones. The Diploma can be taken by anyone who has successfully completed the Certificate programme.

These seminars consist of presentations on policy objectives and regulatory requirements and workshops on implementation and best practice. Between these events, students study the course material provided.

THE PROGRAMME

The Certificate in Housing Studies provides housing practitioners, students of public policy and anyone with an interest in housing with a comprehensive introduction to housing services and policy in Ireland. A part-time, accredited programme, it responds to a palpable need among staff working in local authorities and in voluntary and co-operative housing organisations for a greater understanding of the major issues in public/social housing.

IS THIS PROGRAMME FOR YOU?

The Certificate in Housing Studies will be of huge benefit to housing practitioners, in both generalist and technical positions, in local authorities and approved housing bodies. It provides a system-wide induction to public/social housing—an area of huge national importance—in a practical and applied manner. The programme will also appeal to anyone working in related areas who would like to understand the evolution of housing policy in Ireland.

ASSESSMENT

Assessment is based on course work and a final exam.

PROFESSIONAL DIPLOMA IN HOUSING STUDIES

KEY FACTS:

DELIVERY METHOD:

The programme is delivered through a blended learning model. Students attend classroom-based seminars and are supported in their studies by various online resources and bespoke course material.

DURATION: One academic year.

ACCREDITATION: National University of Ireland.

PLACE ON NFQ: Level 8 (Special Purpose Award).

COMMENCES: September/October 2022.

APPLICATION DEADLINE: September 2022.

FEES: €1,500 (including all matriculation and examination fees), payable in one or two instalments. See p.76 for more details.

ENTRY REQUIREMENTS: IPA Certificate in Housing Studies or equivalent. Significant experience in the housing area can also be considered ground for entry.

THE PROGRAMME

The Professional Diploma in Housing Studies—the first course of its kind in Ireland—has been developed to provide an in-depth and analytical treatment of social and supported housing. Housing studies is a field of immense importance in Ireland and elsewhere. The provision of social and affordable housing and of different types of housing supports and rental assistance are key parts of the modern welfare state. Such provision is complex, however, and affected by economic and social considerations, legislation, and broader policy frameworks.

It is vitally important that those interested in housing studies—whether they work in local authorities, government departments, the voluntary and advocacy sectors, relevant state bodies or elsewhere—have expertise in the prevailing theories, the recurring issues and the contentious problems that define the contemporary housing studies field in Ireland and abroad. This professional qualification, which can be taken from anywhere in the country, will furnish participants with that expertise.

IS THIS PROGRAMME FOR YOU?

The programme has a very broad appeal. Participants may have a personal interest in housing studies or may have professional responsibilities that would be well served by a discrete qualification in this area. Those with a professional interest in housing often work in local government, in the civil service, in state or voluntary bodies or in advocacy organisations especially concerned with the provision and management of housing services. Whether they work in management, administrative or technical positions, this professional diploma will meet their needs by providing a comprehensive introduction to housing studies in Ireland.

PROGRAMME CONTENT

This Professional Diploma covers the following topics:

- The Housing Market: affordable housing, public housing and rental assistance
- Issues for the Welfare State: social protection and the provision of housing services
- Housing policy in Ireland in a comparative context
- Public Policy Making: from social problems to housing outputs and socio-economic outcomes
- Housing Acts 1966 - 2009: the regulatory framework for housing in Ireland
- The provision of social housing support in Ireland: the roles of public, private and voluntary sectors
- The future direction of housing policy

DELIVERY

This one-year programme combines intensive seminars with online resources and bespoke course material. Delivered by housing studies experts, seminars are designed to support students over the course of the programme and to enable them obtain a deeper understanding of housing in Ireland. The course material, meanwhile, includes a specially developed manual and associated reading lists.

ASSESSMENT

Assessment is based on a combination of continuous assessment and end-of-year exams.

SUBJECTS

YEAR ONE – CERTIFICATE IN BUSINESS STUDIES

The first year is both a stand-alone qualification – Certificate in Business Studies – and part of the four-year degree programme. See also p. 66.

Financial Accounting

This course explains the key principles and techniques of financial accounting. Students will learn about different accounting systems, the purpose of accounting records, the preparation and analysis of profit and loss accounts, balance sheets and income and expenditure accounts.

Quantitative Methods

All organisations, whether operating commercially or otherwise, must undertake research and analyse relevant data. This course explains the principles of business research and the mathematical techniques used when examining the results of that research. Among the specific topics addressed are the preparation of surveys, population samples and linear regression and correlation.

Managing IT/Managing Human Resources

This course explores the proper management of two of the most crucial components in an organisation. The first part of the course considers such topics as the role of IT in the workplace and the appraisal of investment in new IT systems. The second part turns to human resources, examining the responsibilities of the HR manager in today's workplace.

Business Administration and Marketing

This course describes and assesses the proper organisation and control of a business unit and examines a vital business function: marketing. It covers, among other things, financial and administrative controls, best practice in day-to-day operations and marketing strategies.

YEAR TWO -

DIPLOMA IN BUSINESS STUDIES (ACCOUNTING)

The second year is both a stand-alone qualification – Diploma in Business Studies – and the second stage of the BBS (Hons) degree. See also p. 67.

Cost Accounting

Cost accounting helps managers see the cost of business operations and thus make informed decisions. This course explores the main principles and processes of cost accounting, including budgeting, absorption and marginal costing and basic standard costing.

Financial Accounting

This course examines the core elements of financial accounting, a branch of accounting that prepares financial statements for interested parties outside the organisation. Students examine the financial accounts of limited companies, tangible and intangible assets, taxation, cash flow, post-balance sheet events and earnings per share.

Economics

This introductory-level course explains the main theories and principles of economics. It covers both micro- and macro-economics and addresses such topics as the laws of supply and demand, how market prices are reached, monopolies and competition and monetary policy.

Business and Company Law

All transactions in the State, whether public or private, are governed by law. In this course, students will examine the laws that pertain to the creation, performance and dissolution of contracts, the formation of companies, the acquisition of shares and the liquidation of businesses.

YEAR THREE

Financial Accounting

This course extends student's understanding of the principles and methods in the preparation of accounts, covering such topics as company accounting, consolidated accounts, the interpretation of accounts and company reorganisations.

Management Accounting

Management accounting provides vital information to managers within an organisation. This course explores its key components: budgeting, advanced variance analysis, activity-based costing, pricing and divisional performance appraisal.

Financial Management

This course explores the crucial elements in financial decision-making, including financial mathematics, the sources of organisational finance, financial risk, investment decisions, the proper management of working capital and mergers and acquisitions.

Enterprise and Project Management

This course addresses enterprise and the management of business relationships. Among the specific topics covered are the enterprise cycle, branding, the stages of project management and the e-commerce infrastructure.

YEAR FOUR

Auditing

This course provides a comprehensive explanation of what a financial audit is. It examines the different types of audit, the planning that precedes an audit, the substantive testing an auditor undertakes, the stages in the completion of an audit and the principles of corporate governance.

Business Policy

The primary aim of this course is to explain the pivotal importance of strategic thinking and policy development to modern management. It considers, among other things, the factors that shape an organisation's strategy, the business environment, the causes of corporate decline and how to choose between strategy alternatives.

Management Accounting Applications and Control

This course applies quantitative methods to accounting principles and processes. It explores, among other topics, the integration of cost data in management, how to establish operational variances, linear programming and regression analysis.

Taxation

Any coherent analysis of an organisation's accounts must encompass taxation issues. This course explains tax law in Ireland, examining income tax, corporation tax, capital gains, stamp duty, VAT, capital acquisitions tax and capital gains tax.

This course applies quantitative methods to accounting principles and processes. It explores, among other topics, the integration of cost data in management, how to establish operational variances, linear programming and regression analysis.

Taxation

Any coherent analysis of an organisation's accounts must encompass taxation issues. This course explains tax law in Ireland, examining income tax, corporation tax, capital gains, stamp duty, VAT, capital acquisitions tax and capital gains tax.

ASSESSMENT

Students are assessed on the basis of assignments in each subject and final examinations.

CERTIFICATE IN BUSINESS STUDIES

KEY FACTS:

DELIVERY METHOD:

The programme is delivered through a blended learning model. Students attend webinars on selected weeknight evenings and classroom seminars at the IPA on selected weekends. They are supported in their studies by extensive online resources and bespoke course material.

DURATION: One academic year.

ACCREDITATION: National University of Ireland.

PLACE ON NFQ: Level 6 (Minor Award).

COMMENCES: September 2022.

APPLICATION DEADLINE: September 2022.

FEES: The cost of the programme is €3,200 per annum (includes all matriculation and examination fees), payable in one or two instalments. See p.76 for more details.

PROGRESSION: Students can progress to the second year of the Diploma in Business Studies or BBS (Hons).

THE PROGRAMME

The Certificate in Business Studies is a one-year, part-time programme that provides a systematic introduction to modern business theory and practice. Students take four subjects and address such crucial topics as accounting techniques, research and quantitative methods, the HRM function in modern organisations and marketing strategies.

The Certificate is both a stand-alone qualification and the first year of the four-year Bachelor of Business Studies (Hons) programme. Students who successfully complete this year can enter the second year of the BBS (Hons), where they will have the opportunity to obtain an interim diploma qualification and specialise in a field of particular relevance to them.

IS THIS PROGRAMME FOR YOU?

If you want to obtain a solid understanding of subjects at the core of business life, this one-year programme will most certainly meet your needs. While many students wish to develop a career in private sector industry (financial services, marketing, business management, etc), the subjects studied have such a wide application that the programme attracts a diverse student body.

SUBJECTS

Financial Accounting

This course explains the key principles and techniques of financial accounting. Students will learn about different accounting systems; the purpose of accounting records; and the preparation and analysis of profit and loss accounts, balance sheets and income and expenditure accounts.

Quantitative Methods

All organisations, whether operating commercially or otherwise, must undertake research and analyse relevant data. This course explains the principles of business research and the mathematical techniques used when examining the results of that research. Among the specific topics addressed are the preparation of surveys, population samples and linear regression and correlation.

Managing IT/Managing Human Resources

This course explores the proper management of two of the most crucial components in an organisation. The first part of the course considers such topics as the role of IT in the workplace and the appraisal of investment in new IT systems. The second part turns to human resources, examining the responsibilities of the HR manager in today's workplace.

Business Administration and Marketing

This course describes and assesses the proper organisation and control of a business unit and examines a vital business function: marketing. It covers, among other things, financial and administrative controls, best-practice in day-to-day operations and marketing strategies.

ASSESSMENT

The programme is assessed by means of assignments and final examinations.

DIPLOMA IN BUSINESS STUDIES

KEY FACTS:

DELIVERY METHOD:

The programme is delivered through a blended learning model. Students attend webinars on selected weeknight evenings and classroom seminars at the IPA on selected weekends. They are supported in their studies by extensive online resources and bespoke course material.

DURATION: Two academic years.

INTERIM AWARD: Certificate in Business Studies (Year 1).

ACCREDITATION: National University of Ireland.

PLACE ON NFQ: Level 6.

COMMENCES: September 2022.

APPLICATION DEADLINE: September 2022.

FEES: The cost of the programme is €3,200 per annum (includes all matriculation and examination fees), payable in one or two instalments. See p.76 for more details.

PROGRESSION: Students can progress to the relevant stream of the third year of the BBS (Hons).

CHOICE OF STREAM SUBJECTS: The stream subjects available in any given year depend on student numbers.

THE PROGRAMME

This two-year part-time programme is both a stand-alone qualification and the second year of the four-year (BBS) Hons programme. Having completed the first year—Certificate in Business Studies—students continue their studies with subjects from one of three streams:

- Accounting
- Marketing
- Human Resource Management

If students do not wish to take all the subjects in one year, they can study on a phased basis.

IS THIS PROGRAMME FOR YOU?

The subjects covered in the Diploma have a wide application and the programme attracts students interested in careers in both the private and public sectors. It offers instruction in both core business competencies and in specific business functions, allowing students gain a solid understanding of the principles and practices that govern contemporary business life and to specialise in a specific stream.

SUBJECTS

YEAR ONE - CERTIFICATE IN BUSINESS STUDIES

The first year is both a stand-alone qualification and the first stage in the Diploma and the BBS (Hons). See p.66 for more details.

YEAR TWO

Cost Accounting

Cost accounting helps managers see the cost of business operations and thus make informed decisions. This course explores the main principles and processes of cost accounting, including budgeting, absorption and marginal costing and basic standard costing.

Economics

This introductory-level course explains the main theories and principles of economics. It covers both micro- and macro-economics and addresses such topics as the laws of supply and demand, how market prices are reached, monopolies and competition and monetary policy.

Business and Company Law

All transactions in the State, whether public or private, are governed by law. In this course, students will examine the laws that pertain to the creation, performance and dissolution of contracts, the formation of companies, the acquisition of shares and the liquidation of businesses.

STUDENTS CHOOSE A FOURTH SUBJECT FROM ONE OF THE FOLLOWING STREAMS:

Accounting

Financial Accounting: This course examines the core elements of financial accounting, a branch of accounting that prepares financial statements for interested parties outside the organisation. Students examine the financial accounts of limited companies, tangible and intangible assets, taxation, cash flow, post-balance sheet events and earnings per share.

Marketing

Marketing Information Analysis: Marketing campaigns and strategies are dependent on comprehensive and accurate information about target markets. This course explores how useful marketing information is obtained and analysed.

Human Resource Management

Organisational Behaviour: Organisations, despite having similar processes and business units, often behave in different ways. A key objective of HRM is to understand and direct organisational behaviour. This course discusses the relevant issues, including communication, organisational culture and group behaviour.

ASSESSMENT

The programme is assessed by means of assignments and final examinations.

BACHELOR OF ARTS (HONS) - INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY MANAGEMENT

KEY FACTS:

DELIVERY METHOD:

The programme is delivered through a blended learning model. Students attend webinars on selected weeknight evenings and classroom seminars at the IPA on selected weekends. They are supported in their studies by extensive online resources and bespoke course material.

ENTRY REQUIREMENTS:

Applicants must have completed the Diploma in Computer Studies or equivalent qualification at Level 6 (Major) on the NFQ.

DURATION: Two academic years.

AWARD: Honours Bachelor of Arts.

ACCREDITATION: National University of Ireland.

PLACE ON NFQ: Level 8 (Major Award).

COMMENCES: September 2022.

APPLICATION DEADLINE: September 2022.

FEES: The cost of the programme is €3,200 per annum (includes all matriculation and examination fees), payable in one or two instalments. See p.76 for more details.

PROGRESSION: Students can progress to graduate studies with the IPA.

THE PROGRAMME

This programme allows graduates of the Whitaker School's Diploma in Computer Studies or equivalent qualification to obtain an honours degree in IT management in two years. Students combine the study of economics and strategic and financial management with subjects specific to IT management.

IS THIS PROGRAMME FOR YOU?

If you have completed the Diploma in Computer Studies or equivalent qualification, this programme presents an ideal opportunity to obtain an honours degree in just two years and to acquire some expertise in other subjects central to public management.

SUBJECTS

YEAR ONE

Economics

This year's course focuses on public sector economics, a field that is critical to public servants at various grades. The topics addressed include economic growth, forecasting and planning, the finances of central and local government, the principles of taxation, the preparation of budgets, borrowing and the national debt and income redistribution.

Managing the Software/Data Infrastructure

This is a technical management course that includes the study of database design and management, the integration of data types, security, human factors in software design, and industry trends.

Managing the Hardware Infrastructure

The aim of this course is to provide a sound understanding of hardware infrastructure management. It examines such topics as network planning, hardware configurations, protocols, design options, security and contingency measures and industry trends.

Financial Management

This course aims to provide students with a clear understanding of standard accounting techniques and the proper management of an organisation's finances. Designed for those who do not possess a background in accounting, it addresses, among other things, double-entry book-keeping, how profits are measured and the regulations governing financial statements and disclosure.

YEAR TWO

Information Systems (IS) Planning

This course examines the planning of IS, the inclusion of IS in broader business strategies, the economics of IS development and the role of IS in project management.

Human Factors in Information Systems

The human factors that affect the planning, introduction and management of IS systems are discussed in this course. Among the topics addressed are cognitive and behaviourist approaches to human interventions in IS, how change is managed and legal issues.

Economics

The study of economics in this year turns to economic policy and policy analysis. The course explores such topics as industrial and regional economic policy, economic integration, the theory and practice of cost-benefit analysis and issues around financing and control.

Strategic Management

Strategic management is the study of how organisations meet their objectives and effectively respond to change. This course focuses on strategic management in the Irish public sector, but it covers concepts common to both public and private sector organisations.

ASSESSMENT

The programme is assessed through assignments and final examinations.

DIPLOMA IN COMPUTER STUDIES

KEY FACTS:

DELIVERY METHOD:

The programme is delivered through a blended learning model. Students attend webinars, seminars (as required), and are supported in their studies by various online resources and course material.

DURATION: 18 months.

ACCREDITATION: National University of Ireland.

PLACE ON NFQ: Level 6 (Special Purpose Award).

COMMENCES: October/November 2022.

APPLICATION DEADLINE: September 2022.

FEES: The cost of the programme is €2,400 for the first semester and €2,550 for the second.

PROGRESSION: Students can progress to the final two stages of the BA (Hons) – IT Management and the BBS (Hons) – IS Management on completion of a bridging programme.

THE PROGRAMME

The Diploma in Computer Studies is a part-time programme of training and education leading to a professional qualification in Information Technology.

IS THIS PROGRAMME FOR YOU?

This programme is particularly suitable for both end users with a strong interest in Information Technology who would like to make a career in IT and those already working in IT who would like to extend their knowledge and convert their experience into a formal qualification.

PROGRAMME CONTENT

The programme has three compulsory modules:

- Hardware and Software Fundamentals
- Project and Operations Management
- Security Foundations

Students also take two electives from the following five modules:

- Cloud and Virtualisation
- Big Data and Data Analytics
- Web Design
- Systems Development
- Database Design

Students taking Systems Development must also take Database Design. Students taking Database Design can take any other elective.

DELIVERY

This is a part-time programme that is delivered over two semesters. It is delivered through a combination of online resources and intensive webinars.

PROGRESSION

Graduates of the Diploma programme may progress to the final two stages of the Bachelor of Arts (Hons) IT programme or the BBS (Hons) IS Management programme on completion of a short course of bridging studies.

ASSESSMENT

Assessment is through a combination of on-line testing, assignments, project work and examination.

ESSENTIAL INFORMATION

TIMETABLES

Timetables depend on the programme being taken and are available from the undergraduate office prior to registration. Programmes generally run from the middle of September until the end of March, with a break for Christmas.

EXAMINATIONS

Examinations for most programmes will take place at various dates in April 2023. Some programmes, however, have exams in December/January/March. Dates for examinations will be provided on registration.

DELIVERY OF STREAM SUBJECTS (DEGREE PROGRAMMES ONLY)

Students of the BA (Hons) and BBS (Hons) choose a subject stream when entering the second year of their programme. They then study subjects common to all streams and subjects specific to their stream. The streams available in any given year depend on student numbers. If there are insufficient numbers to offer a stream, students will be offered an alternative stream.

PAYING FEES

Fees are to be paid in one or two instalments. The first instalment must be paid before the programme begins.

Fees can be paid by:

- Electronic Transfer (contact the Undergraduate Office for details)
- Debit/Credit Card (contact the Undergraduate Office for details)
- Cheque (payable to Institute of Public Administration)
- Bank Draft

Employers and Fees

Where employers are paying fees directly to the IPA, students, when enrolling, must provide a PO number and employer authorisation (name, address, and signature of authorising officer). Alternatively, students may submit a letter from their training or HR officer confirming that fees will be paid directly.

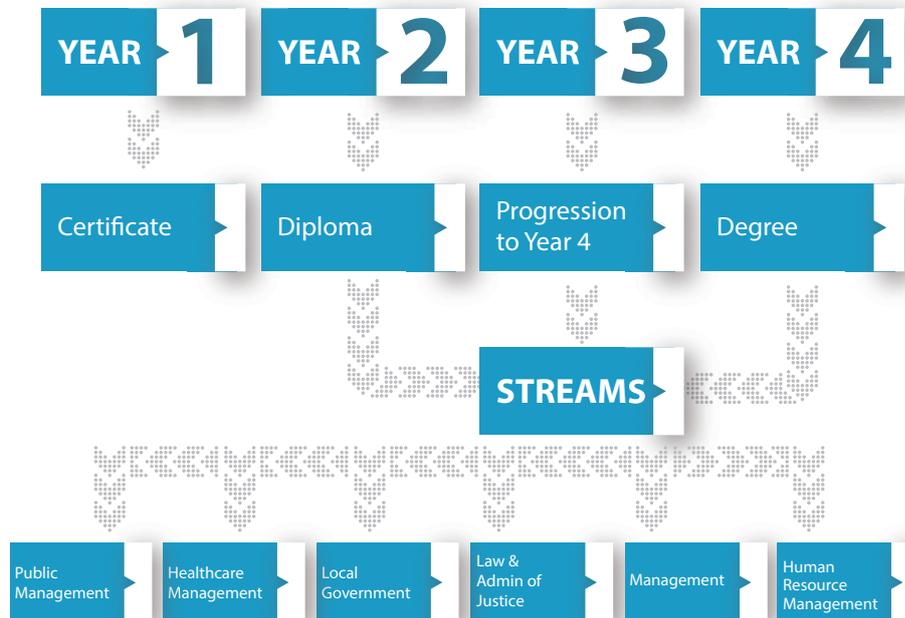

Note: A letter stating that fees will be refunded to students at the end of the year will not suffice.

Tax Relief on Fees

Students who pay their own fees are eligible under the 1996 Finance Act for tax relief at the standard rate, as the IPA is an appointed institution under the Act. Programmes must be longer than one year in duration for students to qualify for tax relief.

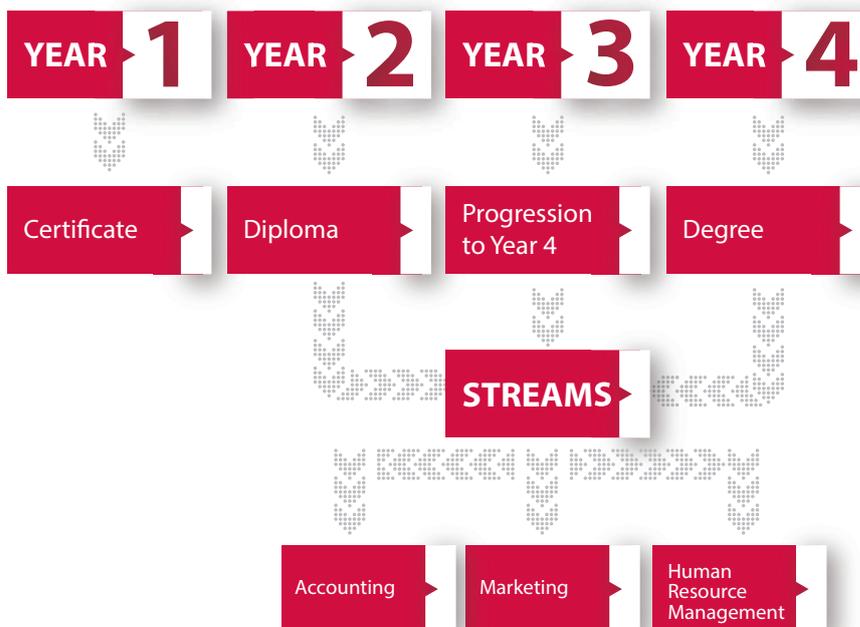

STRUCTURE OF THE BACHELOR OF ARTS (HONS) AND BACHELOR OF BUSINESS STUDIES (HONS) PROGRAMMES

BACHELOR OF ARTS (HONS)

Students take four subjects in each year of this programme. All students take the same four subjects in the first year. In the second year, they take some core subjects and some elective subjects that allow them to specialise in one of six streams: Public Management, Healthcare Management, Local Government, Law and the Administration of Justice, Management and Human Resource Management. Interim awards are given at the end of years one and two.

BACHELOR OF BUSINESS STUDIES (HONS)

Students take four subjects in each year of this programme. All students take the same four subjects in the first year. In the second year, they take some core subjects and some elective subjects that allow them to specialise in one of three streams: Accounting, Marketing and Human Resource Management. Interim awards are given at the end of years one and two.
